

The Egyptian Museum is the oldest archaeological museum in the Middle East, and houses the world's largest collection of Pharaonic antiquities in the world. The museum displays an extensive collection spanning from the Predynastic Period to the Greco-Roman Era.

At the Egyptian Museum, a group of visitors – including a billionaire, a superstar, a tour guide, and an archaeologist – experienced an unexpected incident. While exploring the museum, chaos erupted when someone threw a smoke bomb, causing confusion for 30 minutes. During the chaos, the Khafre Statue, a highly valuable statue, disappeared. This triggered a serious investigation by the authorities, creating a sense of urgency and mystery surrounding the missing sculpture.
